

Grashoff & Schumm is expanding with Michael Belko as the new partner for CIO advisory

The management consultancy Grashoff & Schumm is expanding its solution portfolio with the strategic topic CIO advisory and is excited to have gained Michael Belko as a new partner. The goal is a stronger integration of project management services with the related transformation of the client IT organisations.

With his long-standing experience as a consultant and CIO, Michael Belko is a perfect addition to the team of co-founder Dr. Henning Grashoff: “As Grashoff & Schumm we have been leading large scale IT and transformation projects for our clients for 18 years. The current digitalization programs regularly impose tremendous challenges for the IT organisations. Michael Belko knows both sides. As a CIO and consultant, he was responsible for large programs and organisations. Therefore, he is the ideal partner for our clients and us with regards to CIO advisory for IT transformation.”

All Grashoff & Schumm consultants have proven expertise from industrial companies and usually support in client roles.

“Grashoff & Schumm stands for client orientation with the courage to follow company specific but also unconventional paths. The team brings the appropriate combination of customer understanding, years of practical experience and agility to the projects. This is the ideal blend that our clients expect when it comes to the development of innovative solutions and structures in the range of IT and digital strategy to portfolio management and architecture” as Michael Belko roughly outlines the topic of CIO advisory.

After graduation in industrial engineering, he accumulated his experiences in different consulting and management positions at PwC Consulting, IBM Global Business Services as well as ZEISS as head of Corporate IT.

Grashoff & Schumm is an established consultancy for project management in the areas of sales and supply chain, frequently in the context of SAP S/4 Hana and digital ecosystems. Interim management at the Top-500 German companies is another area of specialization. Grashoff & Schumm develops implementation roadmaps and strategies, conducts project and program reviews, and re-starts and realizes projects for its clients. With Michael Belko additional emphasis is put on CIO advisory as an integral part of the clients' digital transformation journey.
